A close-up photograph of a shallow bowl filled with water. Numerous cherry blossom petals are floating on the surface. The petals are in various stages of bloom, with some showing vibrant pink and others a pale, creamy white. The bowl is positioned in the lower half of the frame, with its rim visible. The background is a soft-focus view of a light-colored wooden floor with a grid pattern. The entire image is split vertically down the middle. The left half is tinted with a light, airy purple, while the right half is tinted with a darker, more saturated purple. The text is overlaid on the right, darker half.
